New Home for Linda's Plants

This year was a fairly quiet one for us. No big trips to brag about--we spent the greater part just caccooning. The summer was spent at home except for Boy Scout Summer Camp. We built a new deck with a green house that connects to the master bedroom giving Linda a quiet place with her plants. That took most of the summer what with designing and building and all.

Pat to the Rescue!

Pat had an interesting summer working for Valley of the Moon Fire Department as a full time paid employee. He was sent with a task force from our valley to fight the big fire near Chico in August. He also attended the Explorer's fire fighting academy last Spring at El Toro again and was chosen to be a Captain. He is a full time student, studying engineering and getting ready to transfer to a four year school.

Will Charlie Drive Us Crazy?

Charlie has made a place for himself by going out and finding jobs to do during the summer. He worked for a couple of people with landscaping and maintainance during the summer and landed a job with Moon Mountain Christmas Tree Farm for the holiday season. He has just turned sixteen and is working on his driver's licensel Oh No! Two unmarried male drivers under age twenty five! Time to find a second job I guess.

Kevin Learns a Hard Lesson

Kevin is in eighth grade already. He saved up his money last spring to buy a mountain bike and then had it stolen in September. He had to save up money again to replace it, since the first one was not locked up when it was taken. That took him some time, but the lesson is an important one in these days. Kevin's good news comes from school and music. He is playing tuba in concert band and piano in the jazz band and seems to be enjoying both.

Grant Busts a Gut!

Grant had a unique winter. He was off work for a month because of hernia repair surgery in February. Didn't get to use his new ski boots at all! Maybe this winter if we ever get any rain and snow.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!
